

Agriculture & Forestry Today with Commissioner Bob Odom

Bonds totaling $45 million were signed in late February to construct and equip a syrup mill near the town of Lacassine in Jefferson Davis Parish, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

When operational, the syrup mill will turn sugarcane grown in southwest Louisiana into syrup that can be more easily transported by rail for further processing to sugar mills in the south central and southeastern part of the state.

"This is a boon for sugarcane farmers and the citizens of southwest Louisiana. The farmers will benefit economically by saving on transportation costs. And citizens will have a safer drive because of rail shipping that will take many cane trucks off the road," Odom said. "The syrup mill has the potential to employ close to 100 people."

Odom said the syrup mill is the result of efforts spearheaded by the Louisiana Agricultural Finance Authority and supported by the Jefferson Davis Economic Development Office, state Sen. Gerald Theunissen and state Rep. Dan Morrish, both of Jennings.

Construction of the syrup mill is scheduled to begin after all permits are received. Odom plans to have the mill operating for the sugarcane season beginning in September 2005.

Currently, the future syrup mill site is home to a sugarcane loading facility and rail spur.

"Last year farmers shipped close to 106,000 tons of sugarcane by rail from this site," Odom said. The rail spur helps alleviate some of the traffic problems caused by cane trucks, especially in densely populated areas like Lafayette.

Odom said the Jefferson Davis Parish Economic Development Office has also been meeting with companies who are interested in locating at a planned industrial park at the site.

"The possibilities for growth and development at this site are remarkable. Community support and the teamwork demonstrated by all parties involved are turning something that once seemed like a grand idea into an economically sound reality," Odom said.

Hibernia National Bank secured the bonds and Lehman Brothers

Inc. is the underwriter and remarketing agent. Proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be used by the Louisiana Agricultural Finance Authority (LAFA) to complete the syrup mill project.

LAFA will own the facility until the debt is paid off.

"LAFA has been instrumental in promoting, establishing and expanding ag and forestry businesses in Louisiana for years now," Odom said. "This is an example of another successful project initiated by the group and carried through to development."

An African wildcat, dubbed Ditteaux, was the first successful cloning of an endangered species at ACRES.

Genetic research has come a long way since Dolly, the first cloned sheep, was produced in a Scottish laboratory in 1997. Since then, LSU has cloned more than eight goats. Louise and Anna are named after Louisiana; Ellie and Sue for LSU. Skeeter is a transgenic goat that carries an anti-malarial gene. There's also a friendly cloned Brahman cow named Gracie.

All of LSU's goats are transgenic and producing the Antithrombin III protein, but these goats will not go into medicine production.

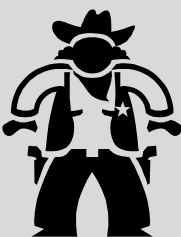

"We're strictly doing research for GTC

Therapeutics," said Denniston. "We report our findings to them, but the goats they extract the protein from are all housed at GTC's FDA-approved facility in Massachusetts."

Perhaps the next big genetic discovery will come from LSU research resulting in a cure for cancer or Huntington's disease.

Today, some view genetic engineering with apprehension, but as more research is done, future generations will realize that the possibility of fixing a faulty gene that causes Alzheimer's or duplicating faithful Rover is a good thing.

The possibilities are endless.

The Louisiana Territory Guys, Gals and Guns club is looking for new members. The group is part of a national organization promoting the sport of cowboy mounted shooting.
